Space Is the Place

Space is the place. It's huge. Enormous. Infinite. Have you ever wondered what's out there? Have you ever looked up at the night sky and tried to count the stars you see? Do you wonder about the planets in and beyond our galaxy?

Many musicians and songwriters have and there are plenty of songs about what they think might be floating around out there beyond our planet. So with that in mind, here's our lesson on curiosity.

Do an internet search for "songs about space", "songs about space travel" or "songs about other planets". There are lots of them. Hundreds, even. Of the ones you find make a playlist of 5 to 10 that you like. As you listen to them think about what they mean to you.

Use your imagination and see if you can draw or paint something that goes along with the music. You can focus on just the words, the music or both. How do the songs make you feel? Do they make you wonder what travelling or living in space would be like?
